PRINCETON, Nov. 5 .- Outside of telegrams which he sent to Gov. Marshall and William F. McCombs, the National Committee chairman, Gov. Wilson made o formal statement about his success to-night.

To the Princeton students who came clamorously demanding a speech after enough returns were in to make Gov. Wilson's election sure the Governor

"I have no feeling of triumph tonight, but of solemn responsibility. I know the great task that is ahead of me and the men who are associated with me. I look almost with pleading with me. I look almost with pleading to you, the young men of America, to stand behind me and to support me in the new administration, and the purest impulses are needed.

Mistakes have been made, but they have not been done malevolently. We must have a quiet temper and a quiet mind in what we are going to do. We must not let any man divert us. We must have quiet temper and yet be resof purpose, but let us bear all patiently and yet hearing all let us not

"When I see the crowds gather it carries me back to the days when labored among you. Prosperity has taken us into devious paths. So much must be done to reconstruct and w must work so justly and prudently that a generation or so must work out what America must achieve.

"The lesson of this election is the lesson of responsibility. I believe a great cause has triumphed for the American people. I know what we want and we will not get it through a cratic candidates for President and Vice-single man or a single session of Consingle man or a single session of Congress, but through the long process exending through the next generation.

"You men must play a great part. I your lives to support the men, who like myself want to carry the nation forward to its highest destiny and greatness."

Soosevelt will get more popular votes than President Taft, due to the influence of Tom Watson, who deserted Woodrow Wilson two weeks ago, charging that Wilson had joined the Knights of Columbus. Watson's following was thrown into the Progressive column by this means and caused the Republican vote of 41,892 given to Taft four years ago to be cut almost in half. The Democratic vote for the State four years ago of 72,413 will probably be greatly increased.

Wilson took nobody into his confidence as to the probable personnel of his Cabinet during his campaign so far as leading Democrats have been able to learn, but the names of several men have come to mind as very likely to be called about the new President as advisers because of their close personal relation to him and the party.

For example, it is generally conceded that W. J. Bryan can be Secretary of State if he desires it, but some of Mr. Bryan's friends doubt whether he would accept it. As a member of President Wilson's Cabinet he would be foreclosed from becoming a candidate against his chief for renomination.

Mr. Bryan's friends believe he will be a candidate and that he considers the pledge in the Democratic platform binds President Wilson to a single term.
